The Andalusian Horse

About the Andalusian Horse

The Andalusian is one of the purest horse breeds in the world today. Andalusians are a Spanish breed of horse, and are named after Andalusia, an area in Spain. Andalusians were the preferred horse of many kings through the years. Andalusians are a very versatile breed, and can be found participating in dressage, cattle work and bullfighting in Spain. It is important to make informed decisions throughout your pet's life. This complimentary book is full of information to help you fulfill your needs. We will provide you with a number of tips and helpful advice. Take a few moments to enjoy this information and you will spend many years enjoying a loving, fruitful relationship with your Andalusian.

Andalusian Horse Characteristics

The Andalusian is highly intelligent and very trainable with a gentle disposition. You can create many happy memories astride an Andalusian. Their beautiful coats can come in a wide variety of colors, but the most common colors are gray or white. Even though Andalusians come in many colors, chestnut is not a legal color for a registered purebred. As with any horse, Andalusians will require a pasture to roam in and a stable for security and comfort. Andalusians are used for and excel in a variety of areas, including dressage, jumping, bullfighting and pleasure riding. Andalusians are still a rather "pure" breed in the sense that they have not been bred with other breeds. Some horses, such as the Connemara and the Lipizzaner horses have Andalusian blood in them, but the Andalusian is still basically the same as it was hundreds of years ago. This is a reliable and intelligent breed and they tend to have an average life expectancy. Andalusians are rather rare in the United States even today. However, this is a wonderful breed and may be worth the extra effort it takes to find one. Proper diet, exercise, grooming and veterinary attention will benefit both you and your Andalusian.

Selecting Your Andalusian Horse

Choosing and buying any kind of horse can be a daunting task, especially if you do not have much experience in this process. The first question you should ask yourself is what do you plan on using the horse for? Your answer can change the qualities you are looking for in a horse. Andalusians are a good all-purpose breed. You can train an Andalusian to race, to be a rodeo horse or to participate in the show ring. You may buy a horse and then find out it is better at jumping than racing, or vice versa. What color do you want your horse to be? Andalusian's can be found in almost any color. Some Andalusians are shorter, while others are taller. Regardless of what color or qualities you prefer, you will have a wide variety of beautiful Andalusian's to choose from. Make sure that you ride the horse and get a good feel for how he acts and how he has been trained before you make any decisions.

A Few Words About Auctions

If you decide to look for an Andalusian at a horse auction, do some research before you go to the auction. Usually, you will be able to find information on various auction houses online. You can also ask around your community to find out what kind of reputation the auction house may have. It may be a good idea to find another owner who has bought from this auction house. What was their experience with this auction house? Try to find out as much history as you can regarding the horse you are interested in. Is the horse already registered? What is its pedigree? Horses may be at an auction for many reasons. Sometimes an auction is just another avenue for a breeder to sell his horses. An auction may be a cheaper way to buy a horse, but you will probably have to be a little more careful since you will not be able to see what kind of training or life the horse has come from.

A Few Words About Breeders

If you are interested in buying an Andalusian from a breeder, make sure they are reputable. There are lists of breeders online and in published magazines. Visit the farm, bringing your own expert with you if you are not sure what you are looking at or feel uncomfortable going on your own. Make an appointment to visit the farm and look at the horses you are interested in. Look at the facilities the horse has been kept in. Are they clean? Has the horse been kept mostly in a stall or in a pasture? How does the horse interact with other horses and people? Also, make sure the breeder has the registration papers from a reputable horse registry and verify the horse's registration and current ownership with the registry. You also should be able to see the horse's papers and lineage. If the horse's parents are at the farm, ask to visit with them as well. All of these things will give you a better idea of what kind of horse you are looking at.

Choosing to adopt or purchase from a breeder is viable based on your own knowledge, expectations, and personal conviction. The most important thing to remember when selecting your pet is to choose the one that is right for you. Pet ownership is a big responsibility. Select a pet that fits your lifestyle.

How to Choose your Andalusian

Choosing a horse can be a hard decision because there are so many different personalities and aesthetic qualities you may want to take into consideration. With an Andalusian, you have several color options available. Sometimes you can make up your mind about what you want before you look at a variety of horses, but what you had in mind may just go out the window if you happen to instantly fall in love with a specific horse. There are a few signs you need to look for to indicate a healthy horse:

1. Bright and clear eyes
2. Healthy coat and no skin conditions
3. History and lineage are necessary as the genetics of animals are much like that of humans.
4. Make sure the hooves are solid and well taken care of.

5. Pay attention to the demeanor of the horse: does it shy away from people? This may be an indicator of abuse and you will need to take that into consideration.

Bringing Your Andalusian Home

It is vital that you have a place for your horse to live when you bring him home. Will you be renting a stable for him to live in? Or do you have a barn on your property? If you have never cared for a horse before, have you done your homework to find out how to care for a horse?

Create a list of items that you will need for your horse. Among the essentials you will need are a couple of good brushes, good feed, a halter, tack and a lead rope. There are many other things you may need, but this is a good list to begin with.

It is vital to keep your horse up to date on any immunizations they may require. You will also need to pay attention to their hooves since they are vital to a horse's health. You will also want to buy books or even check them out from the library and find out more regarding Andalusians. You will also need a veterinarian who specifically deals with horses. Choose your vet before you have any problems, since it will help your vet to see how your horse acts when it is healthy so he can help your horse when he is sick. Horses are a bigger responsibility than the average house pet. However, if you pay attention to the needs of your horse, you will be a success as a new horse owner.

The Andalusian Foal

Each stage of your horse's life will be characterized by special needs. Foals' lives are full of learning experiences from the day they are born. Enjoy the time you spend with your foal, since his experiences as a young horse will shape him into what he will be as an adult. Andalusians are highly intelligent and very sensitive. They are very trainable and are generally eager to please. However, if you feel uncomfortable training a foal, it may be a good idea to hire an expert to help you in this vital part of a horse's life.

As a foal, your horse will require its first shots. He will also need to become used to various grooming aids, such as brushes and combs. While it is a foal, your horse will depend on its mother for food. After it is weaned, you will need to pay particular attention to its feeding so it will grow up with healthy eating habits. Growing horses will need additional grain or supplements to help them grow up strong and healthy.

The Andalusian Adult

As your foal ages into an adult, his needs will begin to change. Andalusians very much enjoy human contact, so it is vital that you stay in touch and interact with them daily.

As a breed, Andalusians generally eat a moderate amount of food. Pay attention to what your horse eats and you should get a good idea of how much to feed him every day. It is also vital that you do not over feed a horse. If a horse eats too much, he can develop founder, which is a serious inflammation of the hooves. A horse can also develop colic if he eats too much rich feed, which can include grass in the spring, high protein feeds and too much grain. If a horse is being shown or is more active, obviously he will require more feed than usual. All horses will need constant access to a salt block to replace the essential minerals they lose during the day.

As your Andalusian ages, his hooves, coat, skin, eyes and teeth may need special attention. Make grooming a happy, special time for your horse. You should keep his coat well-groomed, free of dirt and debris. You will also need to have a farrier visit to care for your horse's hooves and horseshoes. If your horse is well-groomed, healthy and happy, your time together will be much more enjoyable.

The Andalusian Senior

As your Andalusian ages, his needs will change again. Andalusians age at about the same rate as any other breed. You will need to reevaluate your senior's feeding and care needs as he ages. As a general rule, much like any other animal, a horse's skin, eyes, teeth and hooves age and may require different care than they did in their youth. You can help your horse age gracefully with proper feeding, exercise and care.

A senior horse's disposition may change over the years just as any senior's demeanor can change as they age. They may be grumpy when introduced to new things or if they simply do not want to do something you ask them to do.

You will have many happy years and memories with your Andalusian. Horses can be a very special part of your family and can add many happy memories during its life. Andalusians are an intelligent and loving breed that will give you a lot of love, memories and unforgettable times.

Necessary Items

Andalusians will need the same kinds of saddles, bridles, halters and other equipment that other breeds need. The items you need can be found in a variety of sizes to fit the needs of your specific horse. You can find equipment for your Andalusian online, at retail stores or through mail order catalogs.

Tack

Tack is an all-encompassing word that basically refers to the equipment you will need for your horse to care for and ride him. These items include halters, bridles, saddles, and other equipment.

As a general rule, Andalusians are average to large in size. Most Andalusians are average sized for the breed. You may need help in finding suitable tack, but you need to look at your Andalusian and go with the tack most comfortable for him. Ask other Andalusian owners for advice, and usually a tack store employee can be helpful as well.

Feed

Most Andalusian's require a moderate amount of feed. The amount of feed your horse will need depends on how active it is. You will need high quality feed and should always make sure your horse is eating enough. They still need a proper mix of vitamins and minerals to stay healthy. Quality feed and plenty of fresh, clean water will keep your horse healthy and happy. In addition to grain, your horse will need to be able to graze in a pasture or have access to hay. A salt block and possibly mineral supplements are also vital to your horse's health. A salt block should be accessible at all times for the horse's use. You can also research this topic by asking other owners or by referring to books.

Medical Considerations

As a breed, Andalusian's are genetically sound and healthy. It is rare for an Andalusian to have any genetic problems, and is generally one of the soundest and healthiest breeds you can find. However, the breed does not have a large genetic base as many other breeds do, so you will want to check into your horse's lineage and if at all possible to see your horse's parents.
